PREFACE

These Lessons in Hiligaynon have been developed under the auspices of the Pacific and Asian Linguistics Institute of the University of Hawaii with the help of a Peace Corps contract (PC 25-1507). They have been tested in training sessions for volunteers at Hilo Hawaii, a project of the University of Hawaii. This text is one of three on Hiligaynon. The other two are A Hiligaynon-English Dictionary by Miss Motus, and Hiligaynon: A Reference Grammar by Elmer P. Wolfenden. These three volumes in turn form a part of a larger series entitled Pali Language Texts: Philippines edited by Howard P. McKaughan.

It is the hope of the authors and the editor that the materials on Hiligaynon will assist learners of the language to become better acquainted with the Philippines, and that they will also foster the person-to-person understanding that is traditional to peoples of these two countries.

Editor

INTRODUCTION

Hiligaynon is one of the eight major languages of the Philippines. It is 'the dominant language in Capiz, Iloilo, Negros Occidental, Romblon, and in some towns in Cotabato, Occidental Mindoro, and Oriental Mindoro.'^{*}

Language materials never become fixed. No last word can be said. These materials cover only a limited aspect of Hiligaynon grammar and vocabulary. It is hoped that they will be of use to those interested in acquiring a speaking knowledge of Hiligaynon, and that to linguists and anthropologists they will prove a challenge for further study.

These materials were made possible through the Pacific and Asian Linguistics Institute of the University of Hawaii, under the direction of Dr. Howard McKaughan by support from Peace Corps, Washington D.C. Special thanks are due Dr. Ernesto Constantino for advice and encouragement; to Richard McGinn, for editorial suggestions; to Cora Henares and Cora Alkalde for reviewing Hiligaynon entries in both the text and the dictionary; to the Hiligaynon staff of Peace Corps Philippines XXIII for giving their time to the initial production of the supplementary materials; and to Peace Corps Hilo for testing tentative drafts during training of Peace Corps Volunteers.

HOW THESE MATERIALS ARE TO BE USED

I. Time Allotment

These lessons were written for an average of four or five classroom contact hours per lesson. The estimated number of contact hours for mastery of items introduced in this book is around three hundred.

INTRODUCTION

II. Teacher's Role

A good model of native speech is extremely important for proper language acquisition programs. The instructors are the models of native Hiligaynon speech. They teach and guide the students to speak Hiligaynon, but are not to teach about the language. No grammar explanation will be made in class, except at special times designated by Language Coordinators for grammar sessions. The following general instructions for the teacher may prove helpful.

1. Master the dialogue thoroughly. Memorize all the lines in the dialogue. Introduce a dialogue three times at normal native speaker speed and intonation. Then, model it line by line, having the students repeat each line. Repetition of every line should be done at least three times per line. Repetition can be done chorally or individually. It is suggested that choral repetition be performed first until the students gain enough confidence to say an utterance individually.
2. Make the introduction of micro-dialogues as meaningful as possible. Dramatize, or use audio or visual aids.
3. Prepare teaching aids well ahead of class time. Because translation is not a recommended teaching method, visual aids will prove helpful especially when introducing new vocabulary items.
4. Conduct drills as briskly and as lively as possible. Master all the items given in the textbook. You are allowed to add your own entries to some drills, provided that vocabulary and structure conform to what has been covered.
5. Always correct pronunciation or grammatical errors on the spot. Reinforce correct responses.
6. No grammar explanation should be given by a teacher who is not sure of the analysis of Hiligaynon. Refer grammatical questions to Language Coordinators.
7. Role-playing is a must activity every day. Situations should center around possible job-roles of the students.
8. It is suggested that handouts for students be given half-way through the language schedule for the day. Lessons are not to be read in class while class is in progress.
9. Give the students 90 per cent of the class time to use the target language. Model, but do not lecture.

INTRODUCTION

III. Format

The book is divided into twelve units. A brief summary of grammatical points introduces each unit. The number of lessons in a unit vary. The format is based on a Tagalog text being prepared by Miss Teresita V. Ramos at the Pacific and Asian Linguistics Institute of the University of Hawaii.

A structural content (short description of grammatical points) heads each lesson; micro-dialogues follow. These are called micro because they are composed of only two to four lines. The dialogues are the embryo of each lesson. They are authentic models of native conversation and illustrate grammatical points being introduced. Complete internalization of these dialogues should provide the fundamentals of simple conversational proficiency in the target language. Internalization infers more than mere memorization. It means complete mastery of structures learned, as evidenced by use in the learner's active repertoire of Hiligaynon, plus an automatic use of these inside and outside classroom situations. Model sentences (samples of native conversation organized around structures covered in the lesson) are marked in the micro-dialogues with 'M's and numbers. The numbers count the lines of each dialogue. Complete dialogues marked 'C' follow. Complete dialogues are utterance-response arrangements of the model sentences and are also numbered to show how many complete dialogues can be derived from the models given.

Only after mastery of the micro-dialogues is achieved, can the instructor proceed to drill. Example drills are given with every lesson. Drilling should be thorough and programmed to insure movement from controlled use of structures to limited free conversation. Role-playing, which is dramatization of situations usually centering around the future job-role of Peace Corps trainees, is a good testing activity for comprehension and production of dialogues in the target language. It provides encouragement for dialogue exchange of structures drilled day after day. Role-playing is limited free conversation and is one activity in which trainees can show how much of the native speaker's linguistic, as well as kinesic (body movement), communication signals they have internalized. Instructions for the Teacher contain suggested role-playing situations for every lesson.

INTRODUCTION

The lessons are sequenced to cover only one grammar point at a time. The structural content summarizes grammatical points covered in the lesson; the micro-dialogues give samples of native speech using the structures, and drills provide habit-forming activities for internalization. Grammatical explanations are given toward the end of the lesson. These are brief descriptions of grammatical patterns. The student is encouraged to set aside extra review time for going over grammatical explanations.

Cultural notes are given in lessons on an as-needed and ad hoc basis. These are brief accounts of some behavioral or linguistic nuances in Hiligaynon culture.

Lists of new vocabulary items are given toward the end of each lesson. These contain vocabulary introduced for the first time in that lesson. They are provided for student reference during review periods. No time is allowed for teaching of vocabulary through translation. Words are to be mastered in the context of the situations. They are to become part of the student's active repertoire of native terms.

Cumulative dialogues and exercises appear in several lessons. These include samples of native conversation, Hiligaynon stories, or magazine features which contain sentences using most of the grammatical points already taken up by the class.

IV. Supplementary Lessons and Materials

Supplementary lessons are inserted in units which bear related grammatical structures. Some of the supplementary lessons provide additional expansion of structures already introduced. The supplementary lessons are as necessary as any of the regular lessons.

A glossary of words appears at the end of the book. Supplementary materials to go with this text have also been supplied. Part I contains supplementary vocabulary lists; Part II contains a brief introduction to Hiligaynon phonology and short pronunciation drills. Drills cover only sounds which are difficult for American English speakers learning Hiligaynon. Part III contains written exercises, reading exercises, and a miscellaneous section of poems, songs, etc. These miscellaneous materials are for extra-class reading consumption.

DEFINITION OF TERMS

adjective	a word, expression or clause qualifying or limiting the meaning of a noun or any of its substitutes.
adverb	a word, expression or clause limiting or qualifying the meaning of an adjective, a verb, or another adverb.

UNIT I

Greetings and Leavetaking

This first unit of this book gives samples of formulas for greetings and leavetaking. It also includes the use of deictics (locative pronouns which point out distance between an object and the speaker). Three deictics included here are iní, iná', and atú.

First contact with verbs is with the simple root form of the imperative mode. For example: Ká'un means '(You) eat.' The affix /pag-/ also renders a root imperative in form. For example: Pagka'un, meaning '(You) eat.' The word palíhug gives a tone of polite request or mild command.

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

C1: Kamusta ka?
Ma'ayu man.

C2: Kamusta ikaw?
Sa kalu'uy sang Dyus, ma'ayu man.

C. DRILLS

1. Repetition Drill. Students repeat after the teacher:

Ma'ayung aga.	Good morning.
Ma'ayung udtu.	Good noon.
Ma'ayung hapun.	Good afternoon.
Ma'ayung gab'i.	Good evening.
Ma'ayung ugtu.	Good noon.
Ma'ayu man.	Fine.
Sa kulu'uy sang Dyus, ma'ayu man.	I'm fine. (By God's mercy)
Kamusta ka?	How are you?

2. Fixed Substitution Drill. Students substitute the cues in the same fixed slot.

(a) Ma'ayung aga, Miss Cruz.
udtu hapun gab'i ugtu

(b) Ma'ayung hapun, Angela.
Juan
Carlos
Lucia
Barbara
etc.

3. Utterance-Response Drill. Students respond to the utterance.

Ma'ayung aga man.

4. Chain Drill. Teacher starts with the cue.

Teacher: Ma'ayung aga, Juan.
Juan: Ma'ayung aga man, Miss Santos.
Ma'ayung aga, David.
David: Ma'ayung aga man, Juan.
Ma'ayung aga, Nena.
Nena: Ma'ayung aga man, David.
etc.

D. GRAMMATICAL EXPLANATION

1. Ka is the short form of ikaw 'you' pronoun. The short form is more commonly used in conversation.
2. There is dialect variation between udtu and ugtu. Both mean 'noon'.
3. Man is a filler which can mean many things: 'also, well, too'.

E. CULTURAL NOTE

In this area of the Philippines, the use of Ma'ayung aga extends from early in the morning until lunch time. Ma'ayung udtu or ugtu is used between 11:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. approximately. One says Ma'ayung hapun when the time is between 1:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. From 6:00 p.m. until early morning, the greeting Ma'ayung gab'i is in order.

Some consider Filipinos to be fatalists. The response Sa kalu'uy sang Dyus, ma'ayu man may be evidence of this belief. This response is used mostly by older people of the barrios, and is quite uncommon among the younger generation and city folk.

G. CUMULATIVE DIALOGUES—Brief meeting

Gabriel: Ma'ayung gab'i, Tomas.
Tomas: Ma'ayung gab'i man, Gabriel.
Gabriel: Kamusta ka?
Tomas: Ma'ayu man.

2.

David: Ma'ayung hapun, Tiyu'.
Old man: Ma'ayung hapun man, David.
David: Kamusta?
Old man: Sa kalu'uy sang Dyus, ma'ayu man, David.

Note: Tiyu' is a respect form used to address older men; it comes from tiyo 'uncle'.

H. INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE TEACHER (contact hours: 4)

1. Micro-dialogue.

Bring drawings or pictures to class illustrative of the different times of the day, and the greeting formulas.

Dialogue 2 can be dramatized by shaking hands with one member of the class.

2. Drills.

(a) Repetition Drill. As the name suggests, repetition of the utterances is expected of the students. The teacher models all utterances once, having the whole group repeat. Then the teacher models again, and the students repeat individually. Pronunciation errors should always be checked carefully, especially for this drill where the students get first contact with new vocabulary items.

Greetings

The teacher is expected to memorize all entries in the drill. Brisk drilling is facilitated by complete mastery of utterances to be drilled. Because new vocabulary items are introduced in all the lessons, usually through the repetition drill portion of the lesson, the teacher should stay within the controlled vocabulary items in each lesson.

(b) Substitution Drill. There are two types of substitution drill in this volume, the fixed substitution and the movable substitution drills.

A fixed slot substitution drill contains cue words which may occur in the same position or slot in the utterance. The teacher models an utterance and the class repeats. Then the teacher gives a cue word. The class puts this cue word in the correct slot, giving the whole utterance as a response. The teacher reinforces the correct answer, and the students repeat this answer. The rest of the drill continues with the teacher giving only the cue word, the students giving the full response changing whatever is given as the cue. This drill can be done chorally and individually.

A movable slot substitution drill has cues which can occur in two or more different positions in the sentence. The same procedure is followed in conducting this drill as in the fixed slot type.

(c) The Utterance-Response Drill is a two-part drill in that two different responses are expected. The responses may be a question and a response, or a cue sentence and a response. The teacher divides the class into two groups. Group A repeats the entries given in column A, and Group B responds with those given in column B. Once grouping is achieved, the teacher gives only cue words. The students give complete utterances and/or responses to the stimulus. This type of drill calls for switching roles to give both groups a chance to use the two patterns being drilled. The second time around, Group B gives the stimuli, while Group A responds.

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

(d) Chain Drill. A chain sequence progresses as follows. The teacher usually gives the stimulus utterance first. One student responds. This student then gives the same stimulus to the next student, who again answers with the same response. The chain goes around the room until the last student is able to give the stimulus statement. The teacher can change the cue sentence and response as many times as needed.

3. Suggested Role-playing Situation.

- (a) Two students meet in the corridor at 10:00 a.m.
- (b) A teacher and a principal greet each other at 4:00 p.m.
- (c) A teacher and a student greet each other at 8:00 p.m.

D. GRAMMATICAL EXPLANATION

1. Lang and anay are fillers, particles which add to the semantic content of an utterance, but do not perform any grammatical function. Lang may be called a 'limiting' or 'definite particle' since it more or less limits what precedes it. It has a fairly close meaning equivalent in 'just, only'. Anay is one of the 'patience particles'¹ fillers which give a tone of politeness to the utterance they are part of. In this lesson, anay is used to mean 'please'.

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

2. Mayad and miyad, sing and sang are dialect variants.

E. CULTURAL NOTE

There are several ways of saying 'Come in' in Hiligaynon, depending on the place involved. Saka' anay is used when there is a stairway or steps for the visitor to climb. Sulud anay and Dayun lang are used for situations when the visitor is right outside the door. Sulud anay is the formal invitation to enter an office. Dayun lang is less formal and may be used only when house visiting.

F. INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE TEACHER (Contact hours: 4)

1. This lesson follows Lesson 4 in sequence.
2. Take five minutes to drill on unaspirated p again. Write some ten words on flash cards and have the class read them chorally and then individually. Correct errors on the spot.
3. Take five minutes to drill on vocabulary items taken up so far. Pictures can be used to cue different terms. It is not advisable to use flash cards where English equivalents are written from which students may translate into Hiligaynon.

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

4. An informant session is not a class. It is provided to give the teacher a chance to catch his breath after hours of modelling. It is also a means towards widening the vocabulary of the students. Students will have to ask the pattern question in Hiligaynon, and the teacher gives only one-word responses for terms elicited. Unless there is some cultural difficulty or there is necessity for explanation, the teacher is urged not to give any lengthy answers. The teacher should take note of all items taken up everyday and should include these in the daily list of vocabulary items. The students should also be urged to compile a vocabulary list of things that come up.

An informant session should be conducted at least five minutes every day, especially during the first three weeks of class.

5. The students read and memorize Supplementary Vocabulary List 1, Classroom and Office Articles Two Parts of a Room, and Three Parts of a House.

E. CULTURAL NOTE

Adobo is a popular meat dish among Filipinos and is said to represent Filipino cooking abroad. It is chicken and/or pork cooked with garlic, soy sauce, and vinegar.

Utan means fresh or cooked vegetables. It can also mean 'viand' or main dish/food of the meal eaten with rice.

Kundiman is a love song which may be of a gay or sad mood, written in the native language to mirror feelings of 'joy, melancholy, or despair—emotions associated everywhere with love'.

Tinikling is a dance imitating the movements of a long-legged bird called tikling. The dance is performed by jumping in and out of two clapping bamboo poles.

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

UNIT II

Equational Sentences

Hiligaynon like all other Philippine languages has a simple sentence pattern which is unlike anything in English. A simple English declarative sentence has two parts: the subject and the predicate. The predicate is always a verb.

In the Philippine languages, a simple sentence also has two major parts: a topic, and a comment. The topic is not necessarily the actor of the sentence. It is what is being talked about and is considered the most important element in the utterance. The topic can be the actor, or the object of the sentence; it can be a noun, preceded by an ang (before common nouns), or a si (before personal names); it can be a deictic, or a nominal pronoun.

Ma'estra si Miss Santos.

'Miss Santos is a teacher.'

Ma'estro ang lalaki.

'The man is a teacher.'

Ma'estro sya.

'He is a teacher.'

Unlike English, the comment or the predicate part of the sentence may or may not be a verb. A complete sentence can have two noun phrases together. If, for example, the predicate or comment about a topic ini 'this' is to identify it as a member of a class like 'house' balay; Balay ini means 'This is a house.' Or if the comment describes a topic like si Maria. The descriptive word matahum 'pretty' with the topic renders the statement Matahum si Maria as 'Maria is pretty'.

The order of topic and comment does not affect semantic content. The topic can occur before the comment or vice-versa.

Matahum si Maria.

'Maria is pretty.'

Si Maria matahum.

'Maria is pretty.'

This pattern of two noun phrases joined together is called an equational sentence.

In this unit, the nominal set of pronouns is also introduced. This set fills the position of the topic in the sentence to substitute for an ang-phrase or a si-phrase. Hiligaynon pronoun system has two forms for first person plural: an inclusive kita 'we' (you, me, and others), and an exclusive kami 'we' (me and others, excluding you). The nominal set of pronouns is:

Equational Sentences

aku	'I, me'
ikaw, ka	'you (singular)'
sya	'he, she'
kita	'we (inclusive)'
kami	'we (exclusive)'
kamu	'you (plural)'
sila	'they'

This unit also includes the yes/no patterns of questions and responses which fall in the category of equational sentences. The negative particle differs according to the type of question asked. The affirmative particle is hu'u 'yes'. The negative particles are indi and wala 'no' or 'none'.

G. INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE TEACHER (Contact hours: 4)

1. This lesson follows Supplementary Lesson 4 in sequence.
2. Prepare flash cards on time items before coming to class. Write only numbers on the cards. Have the students identify, in Hiligaynon, the time flashed. You can have more entries than are given in the lesson.
3. Bring visual aids to class to help you in drilling on numbers. A model timepiece should be one of the materials. Make the hands movable to facilitate changing of cues.
4. Suggested Role-playing Situations.
 - (a) A PCV forgot his watch at home so he asks around for the time.
 - (b) A Math teacher introduces numbers to his students in the first grade. The numbers one through ten are introduced first. He uses several objects to illustrate the change in quantity.
5. Students go over Supplementary Vocabulary List 7, Numbers; and Supplementary Vocabulary List 8, Parts of a Flower, a Plant, and a Tree.
6. A guessing game can be conducted for extra class activity. Bring a box to class together with ten pebbles. Put the pebbles in the box (varying the number every time). Let the students guess how many pebbles there are in the box. Ask for each student's guess to give a chance for all of them to say the number orally.

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

F. INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE TEACHER (Contact hours: 5)

1. This lesson follows Supplementary Lesson 5 in sequence.
2. Completion Drill.

Ask for birth dates of the students in your class. Give your birth date first so that the students will have an idea of what you want.

3. Hand out Supplementary Vocabulary List 9, Days of the Week and Months of the Year.
4. Teach the song, Lubi lubi.
5. Hand out Written Exercise 3 from the supplementary materials. Allow five minutes of class time for this. The students are to rearrange the words to make logical, grammatically acceptable sentences. Only numbers are written in the blanks provided.

UNIT III

Source Pronouns and Pre-verbs

LESSON 10: The Family	85
LESSON 11: The Family (continued)	90
LESSON 12: Courtship	95
LESSON 13: Foods	101
LESSON 14: Activities	106

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

UNIT III

Source Pronouns and Pre-verbs

One set of pronouns is the source pronouns which are normally possessive pronouns. However, these pronouns also function as actors in certain sentence patterns. There are two sets of source pronouns, the pre-position source pronouns which occur before the object possessed in the construction, and the post-position pronouns which occur after the object possessed in the sentence.

This unit introduces the post-position source pronouns.

nakun	'my'
nimu	'your (singular)'
niya	'his, hers'
natun	'our (inclusive: yours, mine and others)'
namun	'our (exclusive: mine and others, excluding yours)'
ninyu	'your (plural)'
nila	'their'

The possessor can also be a noun, in which case it is marked by either ni (preceding a personal name), nanday (preceding a list of personal names), or sang (preceding a common noun). Nouns with these markers function like the post-position pronouns.

Ang lapis nakun ara'.	'My pencil is there.'
Ang lapis ni Juan ara'.	'Juan's pencil is there.'
Ang balay nanday Carmen	'The house of Carmen and
kag Pablo ara'.	Pablo is there.'
Ang balay sang ma'estro ara'.	'The teacher's house is there.'

D. GRAMMATICAL EXPLANATION

1. Singular source pronouns in the post-position set are:

nakun	'my'
nimu	'your'
niya	'hers, his'

The Family

2. The term post-position implies that the pronoun occurs after another word to indicate its grammatical relationship to other words.
3. The ni-phrase occurs in the same position in the sentence as the post-position source pronouns.
4. Sentence patterns:

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

E. CULTURAL NOTE

There are respect forms in Hiligaynon which have no equivalents in English: manung and manang are used for people addressed who are older in chronological age than the speaker. These may also be used as honorifics for the eldest brother and the eldest sister in the family. Nanay and tatay are the native forms for 'father' and 'mother', but are honorifics when used before the names of aunts and uncles in the family.

Familial relationship in the Philippines is the extended family system. How Hiligaynons reckon family ties is well treated in Gonzales', 'Ilongo Kinship System and Terminology', Philippine Sociological Review. XIII, January 1965, No. 1.

D. GRAMMATICAL EXPLANATION

1. A complete set of post-position source pronouns:

nakun	ku	'my'
nimu	mu	'your' (singular)
niya		'his, her, its'
natun		'our' (inclusive)
namun		'our' (exclusive)
ninyu		'your' (plural)
nila		'their'

2. One way of making a collective noun is by affixing /ka-/ and /-an/ to a root:

lubi	'coconut'	kalubihan	'coconut grove'
amigo	'friend'	ka'amigohan	'circle of friends'
balay	'house'	kabalayan	'group of houses'

/-an/ has an allomorph /-han/. /-an/ is used after roots which end in consonants, while /-han/ is the form used after roots ending in vowels.

3. ku is the short form of nakun; mu of nimu.

D. GRAMMATICAL EXPLANATION

1. Gusto and luyag can be interchanged to mean 'like', but gusto has a connotation which can be taken to mean 'want' or 'desire' especially when used with food. The connotation can be carried over to people relationships: thus luyag is used more often than gusto when referring to persons.
2. The three pre-verbs do not undergo grammatical change in some constructions. They can, however, take affixes when used in completed and proposed actions constructions:

na-gusto-han	liked
na-luyag-gan	liked
ma-gusto-han	will like
ma-luyag-gan	will like

3. Sentence pattern:

UNIT IV

Goal Focus

What is focus? Focus is a key concept in Philippine languages. It is crucial to sentence structure and meaning.

In English, when a speaker wants to emphasize one part of the sentence, he usually does it by intonation variation. The voice is louder or stronger on the part that is emphasized.

1. The child is buying candy from the store for her friend.
2. The child is buying candy from the store for her friend.
3. The child is buying candy from the store for her friend.
4. The child is buying candy from the store for her friend.
5. The child is buying candy from the store for her friend with money.

Further, English uses active and passive grammatical constructions to put focus on the actor as subject or the object as subject:

The child bought candy. by the child. The candy was bought

In Philippine languages, sentence focus is built into the sentence construction by a grammatical mechanism. This phenomenon is called focus. Focus is marked by verbal affixes and a special particle before the noun in focus. With the following vocabulary items, Hiligaynon translations of the above English sentences are given to show the different focus forms of Hiligaynon.

bata'	'child'
bakal	'buy'
pastilyas	'candy'
tindahan	'store'
amigo	'friend'
kwarta	'money'

1. Nagabakal ang bata' sang pastilyas sa tindahan para sa iya amigo.
2. Ginabakal sang bata' ang pastilyas sa tindahan para sa iya amigo.

3. Ginabaklan sang bata' sang pastilyas ang tindahan para sa iya amigo.
4. Ginabaklan sang bata' sang pastilyas sa tindahan ang iya amigo.
5. Ibakal sang bata' sang pastilyas sa tindahan para sa iya amigo ang kwarta.

Inflection of the verb changes from one sentence to the other. Also, ang moves around and goes before different words. The words that follow ang are in focus. These five sentences illustrate the four common focuses in Hiligaynon. Sentence 1 focuses on the actor. Ang precedes bata' which is the actor of the sentence. Sentence 2 focuses on the object or goal of the action. Ang precedes pastilyas which is the object. This sentence is an example of a goal focus construction. Sentence 3 is a referent focus utterance giving grammatical importance to the location of an action. Sentence 4 is also a referent focus construction stressing the benefactor of an action. The location and benefactor constructions are both included in the referent focus group because the verbal affixes and function markers in these constructions are exactly the same. Sentence 5 points out the instrument used to perform an action. This is known as the instrument focus. This last focus is rarely used in spoken or written Hiligaynon.

The particle ang usually functions as a focus marker, preceding the word in focus. However, it can have other functions which are beyond the scope of this book. Wherever ang appears, before the actor, object, place etc., it generally points out the focused part of the sentence. Two other elements can fill the position of the topic of a sentence aside from an ang-phrase: a personal name preceded by si, or any of the nominal pronouns.

Actor	Nagabakal ang bata' sang manga pastilyas sa tindahan para iya amigo. Nagabakal si Maria sang manga pastilyas sa tindahan para sa iya amigo. Nagabakal nya sang manga pastilyas sa tindahan para sa iya amigo.
Goal	Ginabakal sang bata' ang manga pastilyas sa tindahan para sa iya amigo.

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

Ginabakal ni Maria ang manga pastilyas sa tindahan para sa iya amigo.
Ginabakal niya ang manga pastilyas sa tindahan para sa iya amigo.

Referent Ginabaklan sang bata' sang manga pastilyas ang tindahan para sa iya amigo.
Ginabaklan ni Maria sang manga pastilyas ang tindahan para sa iya amigo.
Ginabaklan niya sang manga pastilyas ang tindahan para sa iya amigo.

If the phrase is not in focus, then the marker sang precedes a common noun, or a ni precedes a personal name—or the source pronoun set is used. Another particle, sa, marks direction of an action, be it to a place, person, or thing.

It is easy to talk about focus, but there are no rules stating when to use one over the other. Suffice it to say that goal focus constructions seem to be the 'favorite sentence' type of Hiligaynon speakers. As suggested above, English uses the passive to focus the goal of the action as subject. Such constructions are not as common in English speech as they are in Hiligaynon, and since English passive and Hiligaynon goal focus are sometimes equated, we turn to this unit early in the study.

This unit introduces the following verbal affixes of the goal focus:

Completed action:	/gin-/
Durative action:	/gina-/
Proposed action:	/-un/

The lessons in this unit deal chiefly with the verbal affixes shown above, as these are the most productive forms in Hiligaynon and the most practical to learn for the beginning student. There are other affixes for causative mode, distributive mode, etc., but these are beyond the scope of this book. The grammar reference text will cover other forms.

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

UNIT V

Actor Focus

The sentence pattern of Hiligaynon which comes nearest to the English sentence construction is the actor focus pattern. As the term implies, the topic is the actor. It has the simplest form and admits of the fewest root changes and reductions. The focused part of the sentence, then, carries the focus marker ang or si, or is represented by the nominal set of pronouns.

Ang ma'estro nagkadto sa eskwelahan.

'The teacher went to school.'

Si Mr. Marquez nagkadto

'Mr. Marquez went to school.'

Nagkadto sya sa eskwelahan.

'He went to school.'

Verbal affixes for this focus are:

Completed action:

/nag-/

Durative action:

/naga-/

Proposed action:

/ma-/

D. GRAMMATICAL EXPLANATION

1. Mamati' is mang- + pamati and is the result of a morphophonemic change. Morphophonemic change is the alteration in the sound-shape of morphemes, usually conditioned by surrounding sounds or morphemes. Morphophonemics can occur at word or morpheme boundaries. In mamati', the root pamati' 'to listen' was affixed with /mang-/. The bilabial stop p changes to m in this environment. This phenomenon is called assimilation, i.e., 'when two phonemes acquire

The Source Pronouns

LESSON 24: The Things We Own	171
LESSON 25: Whose are They?	178
LESSON 26: More on Ownership	184

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

UNIT VI

Pre-position Source Pronouns

The second set of source pronouns is the pre-position set. This set occurs before the thing possessed in the word order of a construction. Unit III dealt with the post-position source pronouns which occur after things possessed.

Ang akun libro ara' sa lamesa. 'My book is on the table.'
Ang libro nakun ara' sa lamesa. 'My book is on the table.'

This unit introduces the pre-position source pronouns:

akun	'my, mine'
imu	'you, yours (singular)'
iya	'his, hers, her'
atun	'our, ours, (yours, mine, and others)
amun	'our, ours (mine, and others but not yours)'
inyu	'your, yours (plural)'
ila	'their, theirs'

Some particles mark personal or non-personal possessors. The following are personal possessor markers included in this unit.

ni	used before a personal name occurring after the possessed object in the utterance.
nanday	used before two or more personal names occurring after the possessed object in the utterance.
kay	used before a personal name occurring before the thing possessed in the utterance.
kanday	used before two or more personal names occurring before the thing possessed in the construction.
sang	used before personal nouns occurring before or after the thing possessed in the sentence.

Sang functions both as a personal and non-personal possessor marker and also can occur before or after the thing possessed in the construction.

Ina' ang balay ni Mrs. Reyes.	'That's the house of Mrs. Reyes.'
Ina' ang balay nanday Carmen kag Jose.	'That's the house of Carmen and Jose.'

The Source Pronouns

Ina' ang balay sang prinsipal.	'That's the house of the principal.'
Ina' kay Carmen nga balay .	'That's Carmen's house.'
Ina' kanday Carmen kag Jose nga balay .	'That's Carmen and Jose's house.'

H. INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE TEACHER (Contact hours: 5)

1. Students go over Supplementary Vocabulary List 21, Parts of the Body; and Supplementary Vocabulary List 22, Math Terms.
2. Make a brisk introduction of new vocabulary on parts of the body by pointing to parts or by the use of a big drawing. Always make the students repeat each new vocabulary term at least three times after you have modelled it.
3. To enliven drills or reviews at the end of the day, hold a contest among the students. Divide the class into two groups. Have the students answer by turns, one per team. The first contestant to identify the part pointed to gets a point for his team. The team with the most points wins.
4. Suggested Role-playing Situations.
 - (a) A young man visits his doctor for an examination of an aching back and swollen ankle after a fall during a basketball game.
 - (b) A PCV visits his dentist for his six-month check-up.
 - (c) A science teacher introduces the visible part of the head to her class.

F. INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE TEACHER (Contact hours: 5)

1. Conversion Drill.

Word order is the only thing that is changed in a conversion drill, unlike in transformation drills where grammatical change is accomplished. This type of drill requires only movement of some words or phrases from initial position to medial or final position in the construction.

The teacher gives the cue sentence while the students answer with full converted sentences. The teacher always reinforces the correct response and makes the whole class repeat for reinforcement.

- 2. Place adverbs can be illustrated by using one object and moving it from one place to another in relation to a chair or a table in the room. The object can be placed on top, underneath, beside, near, far, etc., the chair or the table.
- 3. Suggested Role-playing Situations.

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

- (a) Bring a map to class and have the students describe the location of different countries or continents in relation to the oceans that surround them, the countries that are near them, etc.
- (b) Give a brief geographical description of the United States.
- (c) Describe the location of things in the classroom.

G. INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE TEACHER (Contact hours: 4)

1. Conversion Drill.

Cue the students on how this drill is done. Give the first cue sentence and also the first response. Then have the students repeat this response. Teacher gives the second sentence. This time the students give the answer. Teacher reinforces the correct answer and makes the class repeat it.

2. Integration Drill.

There are several possible answers to every item in this drill. Try to get all the possibilities so that the students will know various Hiligaynon constructions. Always reinforce correct responses and correct the wrong ones. Make the drill as brisk as you can.

Where is it (continued)?

3. Suggested Role-playing Situations.

(a) A science teacher points out the parts of a gu-mamela or hibiscus to her students in grade four.

(b) A young boy walks home with his teacher and points out the names of the hills on the horizon, the location of the post office, the church, the town market, the town hall, and the court.

4. For a brisk review, bring a big drawing of a town or a city. Label the different buildings. Have the students identify the position of each building in the drawing.
5. Assign Written Exercise 7. Allow the students to complete this in two days time. Be sure to collect and correct the papers. Do not pay attention to the spelling. Check carefully the grammatical construction of sentences. If possible, go over the papers with the students individually so they will know their mistakes.

The students can write either a short narrative of the drawing or a dialogue of 15 to 20 lines.

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

D. GRAMMATICAL EXPLANATION

1. Ka marks number quantity and is obligatory after a number.
2. Nga connects two nouns, deictics and nouns, adjectives and nouns, or nouns and verbs. Distribution is phonologically conditioned.

(a) When the preceding word ends in a vowel, nga is contracted to /-ng/ and attached to the preceding word.

ma'ayu nga aga > ma'ayung aga
ini nga tela > ining tela

(b) When the preceding word ends in n, the n becomes ng.

atun nga balay > atung balay

(c) All other environments retain nga.

tumpuk nga > tumpuk nga
kamatis kamatis

3. Tagpila expresses distributive quantity in that when used it indicates that the speaker wants to know the cost of each item. Tag pisa is used in the reply to indicate that each item is a peso. Pila asks how much for all.

E. CULTURAL NOTE

Spanish loan words are commonly used in counting rather than the Hiligaynon terms. However, to count from one to ten in Hiligaynon is not uncommon in the rural areas.

Buying and selling is done in the metric measure and other 'native' forms of measurement which might be in bundles, piles, etc. Some Philippine open markets have a very limited supply of produce, mostly homegrown by small farmers in their backyard gardens.

D. GRAMMATICAL EXPLANATION

1. Nalang is used to indicate lack of choice or alternative. In this lesson, it is more of a 'limiting particle' like lang meaning 'only, just'.
2. Abaw and sus are exclamatory fillers meaning 'My!' or 'Oh!'.
3. Tanan is the 'generalizer particle' meaning 'all' or 'all in all'.
4. Ti' is a hesitating particle which is fairly equivalent to the hesitating use of 'Well...' in English.
5. Mu is a rejoinder like 'you know'.

E. CULTURAL NOTE

Bargaining is part of the buy-and-sell process in the Philippines. There are several bargaining techniques, some of which are included in this lesson. In the first instance, bargaining can be tedious, but it grows on the person and can become a great deal of fun, an instrument both for language learning and meeting people.

Bargaining and Math

There are endearment terms and also terms of respect which cannot be translated 'Mr.' or 'Miss' in English. These terms can be applied to people one meets or talks to for the first time. They are literally terms used for family relationships:

Tiyo	(literally 'uncle') Respect term for older men.
Manung	Respect term for older men.
Tiya'	(literally 'aunt') Respect term for older women.
Manang	Respect term for older women.
Dodong, Nonong, Nonoy, Toto'	Endearment terms for younger boys.
Inday, Nene, Palangga	Endearment terms for younger girls.

Palangga is used for 'honey' or 'darling' among adults.

The Filipinos are very particular about imported goods. There is a social prestige attached to the use of these items because of their expensive price tags.

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

UNIT VIII

Modifiers

There are a limited number of words in Hiligaynon which are modifiers in themselves. Most of the modifiers are derived from nouns and affixed with modifying affixes /ma-/ or /ka-/.

The most common way to form modification or attribution in Hiligaynon is by putting a nga between two words which may be a noun and a noun, a noun and an adjective, a noun and a deictic, or a noun and a verb. The nga signals the attribution of one word to the other.

bata' nga lalaki	'a male child'
bata' nga maniwang	'a thin child'
bata' nga ina'	'that child'
bata' nga nagahibi'	'the child who is crying'

Nga can be affixed as a /-ng/ after words ending in a vowel, as a /-g/ after words ending in n.

There are degrees of comparison in Hiligaynon. The most common way of forming a comparative or superlative degree comparison is by adding the particle mas before the modifier in the sentence. The superlative degree can also be formed by affixing /pinaka-/ to adjectives.

Si Luisa matahum.	'Luisa is beautiful.'
Si Lourdes mas matahum kay Luisa.	'Lourdes is more beautiful than Luisa.'
Mas matahum si Carmela sa tanan.	'Carmela is most beautiful of all.'
Pinakamatahum si Carmela.	'The most beautiful is Carmela.'

F. INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE TEACHER (Contact hours: 4)

1. Since this lesson is practically a review of equational sentence patterns, swift and brisk drilling can be done by introducing the colors in a meaningful way using visual aids. A model or drawing of a rainbow of colors should be brought to class for this.
2. Students go over Supplementary Vocabulary List 31, Colors.
3. Suggested Role-playing Situations.
 - (a) Have students describe the colors of each others' clothes.
 - (b) Have a clothing store or a flower shop set up in the room and role-play a customer-salesman situation.

D. GRAMMATICAL EXPLANATION

1. Mas expresses comparative degree. It also expresses the superlative degree if used with the phrase sa tanan. It can be omitted provided the compared elements are both mentioned in the sentence.

Mas mata'as si Pedro sa akun.	'Pedro is taller than I am.'
Mata'as si Pedro sa akun.	'Pedro is taller than I am.'
Mas mata'as si Juan sa tanan.	'John is tallest of all.'
Mata'as si Juan sa tanan.	'John is tallest of all.'

2. The superlative degree can be constructed in two ways: with mas + sa tanan or with the prefix /pinaka-/ attached to the base. The prefix ma- in pinakamabu'ut is the adjectival formation.

Mas mata'as si Pablo sa tanan.	'Pablo is tallest of all.'
Pinakamata'as si Pablo.	'Pablo is the tallest.'

The Aptative

LESSON 43: Talents	283
LESSON 44: Abilities	288

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

UNIT IX

The Aptative

The aptative is roughly equivalent to the English usage of 'can' or 'able to', i.e., the possibility that events have occurred or will occur. The aptative also expresses the ability of people to perform certain actions.

The aptative in Hiligaynon is signalled by affixes attached to the verbs. The aptative forms vary according to focus and time. Only two focus forms are presented in this unit: the aptative actor and the aptative goal.

Aptative verbal affixes are:

Actor, completed:	/naka-/
Actor, proposed:	/maka-:
Goal, completed:	/na-/
Goal, proposed:	/ma-/

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

UNIT X

Imperatives and Causatives

Unit X includes:

(a) imperatives

1. actor focus: verb root
/pag-/ VR
2. goal focus: /-a/ or /-ha/
/-i/

(b) negative commands with /pag-/.../i-/ or /-a/ or /-a/

(c) causative verbal affixes

(d) /pa-/ as direction affix

The imperative affixes of the referent focus will be included in the unit dealing with that focus.

Negative commands are produced by affixing /pag-/... /-i/ or /-a/ to a root. The negative word indi is included in the negative request construction.

Pagka 'un sang mansanas.	'Eat an apple.'
Indi' pagka 'una ang mansanas.	'Do not eat the apple.'

The causative mode is indicated by the affix /pa-/ and signifies that someone permits or causes an action to take place.⁴ This /pa-/ can be combined with all other affixes to express causation in the different focuses and aspects.

Nagpa buhat sya sang bayu'.	'She had someone sew a dress for her.'
Ginpa buhat niya ang bayu'.	'She had someone sew the dress for her.'

4 Howard McKaughan and Batua Macaraya, A Maranao Dictionary, Honolulu: University of Hawaii Press. 1967, p.xiii.

Imperatives and Causatives

Another function of the /pa-/ is to show direction or destination when affixed to place words.

MapaManila' sya.

'He/she will go to Manila.'

NagpaChicago si
Lourdes.

'Lourdes left for Chicago.'

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

D. GRAMMATICAL EXPLANATION

1. The /pa-/ usually denotes causation of action by the actor. It can mean, 'let' or 'allow'. It occurs by itself for first person actor constructions, but /pa-/ is accompanied by /-a/ in all other environments.

Patulug. 'Let me sleep.'
 Patuluga. 'Let (him/her) sleep.'

2. Verb roots which can take the /-a/ suffix for imperative constructions are limited in number. /-a/ has an alternant form, /-ha/. Sometimes phonological changes occur together with affixation of /-a/.

ka'un	pakan'a
basa	basaha
inum	imna
sakay	pasakya
ayu'	ayu'a

1. Suggested Role-playing Situations.

(a) Describe the purpose and function of the Peace Corps or the host country organization you are serving with.

(b) Defend the United States' attitudes toward civil rights.

2. One suggested activity is to bring a recorded conversation between two native speakers, talking about the weather, the elections or any other topic. The taped dialogue should be between a man and a woman so it will be easy to discern the speakers. The dialogue should not be more than five minutes long. Play this tape to the class. Prepare comprehension questions beforehand and after one playing, have the students answer the questions. Play the tape again. After the third listening, distribute another sheet with the same questions. This is a good test of how well the students are able to keep up with conversation between native speakers.

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

D. GRAMMATICAL EXPLANATION

1. The referent focus takes an /-an/ suffix to express action proposed. This affix also functions to express imperatives. The second person pronoun is obligatory in the construction for commands and requests when /-an/ is suffixed to the root.
2. The /-i/ renders imperative referent focus constructions when affixed to certain roots.

H. INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE TEACHER (Contact hours: 6)

1. The cumulative exercise can be utilized as a reading comprehension test. Let the students read the exercise for five minutes in class. Then have them answer the questions, and correct their own papers immediately.
2. Assign Written Exercise 11 for homework. Students are to narrate the actions that take place on the hand-out.

UNIT XII

Noun Formatives

LESSON 53: Places	343
LESSON 54: Making Nouns	346

HILIGAYNON LESSONS

UNIT XII

Noun Formative Affixes

Noun formative affixes generate nouns from roots. Although these affixes are usually attached to roots, some noun roots take these affixes to form abstract nouns.

This unit includes three noun formative affixes: /manug-/, /pag-/, and /-an/. There are numerous other noun formative affixes, but these are beyond the scope of this volume.

LESSON FIFTY-THREE

Places

A. STRUCTURAL CONTENT

VR /-an/ or /-han/

noun base /-an/ or /-han/

B. MICRO-DIALOGUE

- M1: Anu ina' nga balay? What is that building?
- M2: Simbahan ina'. That is a church.
Eskwelahan ina'. That is a school.
- C1: Anu ina' nga balay?
Simbahan ina'.
- C2: Anu ina' nga balay?
Eskwelahan ina'.

C. DRILLS

1. Transformation Drill. Affix /an/ or /-han/ to the following verb roots to nominalize them. Attach the same affix to the noun bases given:

simba	'go to church'	simbahan	'church'
baligya	'sell, goods for sale'	baligya'an	'store'
tinda	'sell, goods for sale'	tindahan	'store'

PHONOLOGY MATERIALS

A Brief Description of Hiligaynon Sounds

The following sounds are present in Hiligaynon: a, b, k, d, e, f, g, h, i, l, m, n, ng, o, p, r, s, t, u, w, y, ʔ. Most of the consonants carry similar phonetic value as in English. However the voiceless stops, p and k are not aspirated (there is an absence of a puff of air after the sound); r is flapped; and t, d, n, and s have a frontal dental quality. The symbol /ʔ/ represents the glottal stop, and ng is the velar nasal sound as in English sing. F is included in the list, not because it is phonemic (a sound which makes a difference in meaning), but because some Hiligaynon speakers use the sound in their dialect. Normally f is replaced by a p.

Hiligaynon vowels are not to be equated with English vowels. Basically, Hiligaynon has only three vowels native to the language: a, i, and u. Two other vowels, the e and the o, have been adopted from Spanish and English. These borrowed vowel sounds are not phonemic, but occur as allophones (variant sounds of a phoneme) of i and u. I is like the vowel sound in 'see, three, or seat'. It varies in pronunciation between this sound and the vowel in 'met' or even the vowel in 'mate'. A is enunciated as in American English 'ah, father, and cot'. The u is like the sound in 'boot, food, or suit'. It varies in quality range from oo in 'boot', to the ou in 'bought'.

Stress is important in Hiligaynon in that it makes for a difference in meaning in some instances. Words containing more than one vowel comprise a two syllable word (or three syllables depending on the number of vowels). One syllable is pronounced louder than the other or others. This prominence is called stress. Example: púnu means 'tree trunk, leader, etc.' while punú means 'full to capacity'.

Ang Ma'alam nga Ba'u kag ang Tuntu nga Amu'

Isa ka adlaw ang amu' kag ang ba'u nakakita' sang punu' sang saging, nga nagalutawlutaw sa suba'. Nagkighambal ang duha nga tunga'un nila ang punu' sang saging. Ginpili' sang amu' ang tunga' nga may manga matahun nga dahun. Ang nabilin sa ba'u, amu ang tunga' nga may manga gamut. Gintanum nila ang ilang parti.

Nagligad ang pila ka bulan kag nagkita'ay liwat ang amu' kag ang ba'u. 'Ma'ayung aga,' siling sang ba'u. 'Kamusta ang saging nimu?'

'Sus,' sabat sang amu', 'madugay na nga napatay! Kag ang imu?'

'A, mayad, mayad gid. Nagbunga na gani'. Pero may problema aku,' siling sang ba'u.

'Anu ang problema mu?' pamangkut man sang amu'.

'Indi' aku makasaka' sa punu' sang saging kay kata'as gid!'

'Ah, mahapus ina'. Buligan ku ikaw. Makasaka' aku bisan anu kata'as.'

'O, sigi ma'ayu ina', 'siling sang ba'u.

Ginsaka' sang amu; ang saging. Apang pag'abut nya sa ibabaw, ginka'un nya tanan ang manga bunga. Wala' nya hatagi bisan isa ang ba'u nga nagahulat sa idalum. Ka'akig lang sang ba'u! Gusto nya magbalus sa amu'. Ginhuna'huna' nya kun anu ang iya buhatun. A, siguru butangan nya sang manga tunuk ang punu' sang saging! Nagpangita' sya sang madamu' nga manga tunuk kag gintusluk nya ini sa punu' sang saging. Sang magpana'ug ang amu' napunu' ang iya lawas sang manga tunuk. Nasakitan sya. Na'akig na karun ang amu'. Kinahanglan magbalus sya sa ba'u. Ginpangita' nya ang ma'alam nga ba'u kag kinuha' nya ini. 'Ihabuy ku ikaw sa kalayu!'

'Sigi,' siling sang ba'u. 'Mayag, mayad gid kay gusto ku ang kalayu.

'Ah, indi', indi' ku ikaw ihabuy sa kalayu. Ihabuy ku ikaw sa tubig', 'singgit liwat sang amu'.

The Shadows

Going up or going down the world of shadows, The children of shadows go.
In every path you meet them Running here and there.
They go around without making any noise They play 'seven-seven'.
But none has yet ever told That they can speak to anyone.
Behind the tree you can see That they dance in and out
And during the daytime there is always one That follows you throughout.

What Can I Do?

Even if I am small
I can also plant a tree like you.
So that in the days when it is tall,
Tall enough to reach the sky
And when her branches are full of leaves
It can give shade on both sides.
So that on hot summer days,
People can rest under its shade and say,
'How good and smart was the person who remembered to plant this nice tree.'
